

"En route" - the documentary that challenges conventional notions of old age among people of all ages, including elderly people themselves, and also shows that older people may not be a ballast, and play a creative, successful and active part in society.

This is a film about the Ukrainian amateur artist Hanna-Tsaryuk Grytsyk ('82) and Vladimir Sokolov (86 years) who have worked all their life, raising children, doing their job, not knowing that at old age they will become popular artists.

Today, these cheerful characters, despite their age, full of energy and love for life. They are an example of that is never too late to realize yourself in a case that you really love.

The film was shot in Kiev and Tallinn.
